

Events at the Research Institute of Language Studies and Language Education during the 2012 Academic Year

“Bag Lunch” Seminars:

June 6, 2012

Luke Rowland

“The Pedagogical Benefits of Linguistic Landscape Projects”

June 27, 2012

Siwon Park and Yasuko Ito

“Learner Background, Amount of Input, and Final State of L2 Grammar”

July 4, 2012

Joachim Castellano

“iPads at KUIS”

July 18, 2012

Siwon Park and Tim Murphey

“Effects of L2 Test-Tasks on Learners’ Speech Performance”

October 3, 2012

Jo Mynard and Phil Murphy

“An Investigation into Offering Flexible Language Courses Utilising Blended Learning”

October 10, 2012

Makiko Tanaka and Siwon Park

“Parents’ Beliefs and Children’s Codeswitching”

October 17, 2012

Thomas Lockley

“FLL Proficiency and its Link with Self-Perceived Performance in the EFL Classroom: An Exploratory Study”

October 31, 2012

Troy Rubesch

“An Embodied Conversational Agent in a Self-Access Center”

November 7, 2012

Brian Morrison

“An Analysis of the Lexical Coverage of English-Medium Songs Popular in Japan”

November 21, 2012

Joe Geluso

“Formulaic Language and Data-Driven Learning: A Direct Application of Corpora in the EFL Curriculum”

November 28, 2012

Keith Barrs

"Implications of Cross-Linguistic Lexical Similarities for Japanese Learners of English"

December 5, 2012

Lara Promnitz-Hayashi and Yuko Sugiyama

"Code-switching and Borrowing in Freshman CSK"

December 12, 2012

Jared Baierschmidt

"Learning English with Video Games: A RILS Project Post-Mortem Analysis"